(Line 1.) Hail! Prosperity! In the fifth year of king Parakêsarivarman,— Naṅgai Kulamānikkattâr, the queen of Vānakôvaraiyar (and) the daughter of Ilādaigal,¹ gave fifteen kalañju of gold for a perpetual lamp to the god of the Tiruvirattānam (temple).

(L. 3.) For this gold, we, the citizens, shall cause to burn a perpetual lamp night and day, at the rate of one uri (of oil) per month for each kalañju.

(L. 5.) This (gift is placed under) the protection of all Mâhêśvara.

E. and F.—INSCRIPTIONS OF PARANTAKA I.

These two Tamil inscriptions (Nos. 270 and 280 of 1902) belong to the reign of "Parakêsarivarman who took Madirai (Madhurâ)," i.e. of the Chôla king Parântaka I.² The first is dated in his 28th and the second, which follows it in line 4, in his 33rd year.

The inscription E. records the gift of a lamp by a daughter of Kayirûr Perumānâr, a chief of Milāḍu, and the inscription F. refers to a similar gift by the regiment of prince Arikulakêšarin. The same prince is mentioned as 'the royal son of the Chôla king' in an inscription of the 24th year of Parântaka I. at Tiruppandurutti near Tanjore.³ He is perhaps identical with Arimjaya, the third son of Parântaka I.⁴

TRANSLATION OF E.

Hail! Prosperity! In the 28th year of king Parakêsarivarman who took Madirai,— Râjadēviyâr Têśadakki⁵ Perumānâr, the daughter of the lord of Milāḍu, Kayirûr

¹ The name of this person suggests that she may have been connected with the Lâṭa chiefs of the North Arcot district; see above, p. 134 and note 4.

² See above, p. 133 and note 6.

³ Published by Mr. Venkayya in the Madras Christian College Magazine of August 1890.

⁴ No. 6 of the Table in South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 112.

⁵ This word means 'the subduer of the lustre (of enemies).' Both this surname and the following title Perumānâr would be more appropriate for a prince, than for a princess.

amānār, gave one hundred undying (and) unaging big sheep¹ for one perpetual lamp to (the god) Perumāḷ² of the Tiruvirattānam (temple) at Tirukkôvalûr in Kurukkai-kûrram, (a subdivision) of Malāḍu. These (sheep are placed under) the protection of all Mâhêśvaras.

TRANSLATION OF F.

Hail! Prosperity! In the 33rd year of king Parakêsarivarman who took Madirai,—the Malaiyāna-orrachchêvagar,³ the regiment of prince Arikulakêsarīyār, gave one hundred undying (and) unaging big sheep for one perpetual lamp, (which was) to burn as long as the moon and the sun shall last, to (the god) Mahādêva of the Tiruvirattānam (temple) at Tirukkôvalûr (sheep are placed under) the protection of all Mâhêśvaras.

INSCRIPTION OF KRISHNA III.

This Tamil inscription (No. 268 of 1902) is dated in the 21st year of Kannaṇaradêva of the Râshtrakûṭa king Kṛishṇa III.⁴ It records a grant of land by the Vaidumba-mahârâja Śandayan Tiruvayan and (his queen) Śûttiradêvi.⁵

The Vaidumbas appear to have been local chiefs. One of them is stated to have been defeated by Râshtrakûṭa I.⁶ Śandayan Tiruvayan, i.e. Tiruvayan, the son of Śandayan, has to be identified with Tiruvaiyan, the father of Śamkaradêva who was a contemporary of Râjarâja I.⁷ and who is called a Vaidumba in an inscription of Râjendra-Chôla I.⁸

The subjoined grant of Tiruvayan is quoted, and the names and measurements of the fields are repeated, in an inscription of Râjarâja I. (No. 236 of 1902), which has been utilized for the translation of the present record.

ANNUAL REPORT ON INDIAN EPIGRAPHY FOR 1951-52

INTRODUCTION

A.—Copper Plates

Andhavaram, a small village in the Narasannapeta Taluk of the Srikakulam District, Madras State, has yielded an urn containing four sets of copper plates. The urn was exposed from a mound at the foot of a banyan tree. One (No. 4) of these four sets belongs to the Māthara king Anantaśaktivarman, lord of Kalinga, and the rest to the rulers of the Eastern Gaṅga dynasty. The charter of Anantaśaktivarman was issued from Vijayapura in the 14th year of his reign while he was camping there with his army. It records the renewal of the grant of the village Āndōrēppa, i.e. modern Andhavaram, made by the king to the same Brāhmaṇas in whose favour it had been formerly granted by Āryaka-Śakti-bhaṭṭāraka. In this expression, the word āryaka seems to indicate 'grandfather' and Śakti-bhaṭṭāraka is probably none other than the Māthara king Śaktivarman of the Ragolu plates (Ep. Ind., Vol. XII, pp. 1 ff.). Anantaśaktivarman thus appears to have been the grandson of Śaktivarman. The reference to the issue of the charter from the camp at Vijayapura probably indicates that the king was engaged in a military expedition, the details of which are not forthcoming. There is, however, some evidence to show that the Mātharas originally ruled from Piṣṭapura in Southern Kalinga and that the Māthara kings extended their power to Central Kalinga and issued charters from Simhapura in that area. Vijayapura whence the present record was issued was also apparently situated in Central Kalinga. The inscription has been published in Ep. Ind., Vol. XXVIII, pp. 175 ff.

Of the other three sets of plates, two (Nos. 5 and 6) were issued from Kalinga-nagara respectively by the Eastern Gaṅga kings Indravarman and Anantavarman. The former (published in Ep. Ind., Vol. XXX, pp. 37 ff.) records the grant of the village of Tōṭavāṭaka in Krōṣṭukavartanī as an agrahāra to several Brāhmaṇas of the village of Andōrakāgrahāra. The record is stated to have been written by Prabhākara under orders of Śrī-Lōkārṇavadēva who is described as one who vanquished many foes. The charter was issued on the occasion of a solar eclipse on the newmoon day of Śrāvaṇa in the year 133 of the Tumburu-vamśa-rājya-samvatsara. There is no doubt that the reckoning is identical with the era usually mentioned in the records of the Gaṅga kings as pravardhamāna-vijayarājya-samvatsara or Gāṅgēya-vamśa-pravardhamāna-vijayarājya-samvatsara. The nomenclature of the era in the record under study reminds us of the Santa-Bommali plates (Bhandarkar's List, No. 2053) which were issued by the Kadamba feudatory of a Gaṅga monarch and refer to the era in question as Gaṅga-Kadamba-vamśa-pravardhamāna-vijayarājya-samvatsara. It seems therefore that Lōkārṇava, under whose orders the charter was written, was a Tumburu feudatory of the Gaṅga king Indravarman and the real donor of the grant that was ratified by the latter (cf. Ep. Ind., Vol. XXX, pp. 52-53). The date of the record is written in numerical symbols as well as in words as śatē trimśaty-adhikē, and the word trayas before trimśati is omitted through oversight. The village of Tōṭavāṭaka seems to be identical with modern Tōṭāḍa or Tōḍavāḍa, about eight miles from Andhavaram, the findspot of the record. Andōraka in Andōrakāgrahāra appears to be an early form of the name Andhavaram which is also called Āndōrēppa in the record of the Māthara king Anantaśaktivarman reviewed above.

Copper plate No. 6 was issued by the Eastern Gaṅga king Anantavarman in the year 216 (of the Gaṅga era). It records the grant of Śakunagrāma situated in the Varāhavarttanī vishaya to the Brāhmaṇa residents of Ānandapura. It may be noted in this connection that the gift village Śakunaka in Varāhavarttanī is also mentioned in the Madras Museum plates of Anantaśaktivarman (cf. Ep. Ind., Vol. XXVIII, pp. 226 ff.). It is interesting to note that Dantapura mentioned in this record as lying on the boundary of the gift village was one of the early seats of the Eastern Gaṅga government (cf. No. 7).

Two sets of plates (Nos. 10 and 11, published in Ep. Ind., Vol. XXVIII, pp. 272 ff.) were received for examination from the Superintendent of Archaeology and Museum, Government of Orissa. Both of them belong to the Bhañja dynasty. No. 10, issued from Vañjulvaka, is dated in the first year of Śilābhañja Tribhuvanakalaśa and records the grant of the village of Dēūlaḍḍa in Śalvaḍa-vishaya in favour of the Brāhmaṇa Lumvādēva. This is the only record of the king so far discovered. It furnishes the information that Śilābhañja was the son of Diśābhañja and grandson of Raṇabhañja. Since the grant was issued from Vañjulvaka and not from Dhṛitipura, the earlier capital of these Bhañjas, Śilābhañja Tribhuvanakalaśa may be identified with Śilābhañja II, represented in some records of the family as the son of Digbhañja (a variant of Diśābhañja) and grandson of Raṇabhañja of Dhṛitipura. No. 11 was also issued from Vañjulvaka by Rāṇaka Nēṭṭabhañja Tribhuvanakalaśa who bears the epithet Paramavaishnava. The king is represented as the son of Rāyabhañjadēva and grandson of Pṛithvībhañjadēva. It seems that Nēṭṭabhañja Tribhuvanakalaśa flourished sometime after another king of the Bhañja family of Vañjulvaka, named Nēṭṭabhañja Kalyāṇakalaśa II. The charter records the grant of the village of Sēḍā in the Nānākhaṇḍa vishaya to Bhaṭṭa Dāuli hailing from Vātalaviḍima in the 13th year of the king's reign. The document which is stated to have been registered by Jīvalōkamahādēvī, probably a queen of Nēṭṭabhañja, bears on its seal the emblem of a lion facing left.

No. 12 discovered at Ghūmlī in Nawanagar (Saurashtra) was secured for examination from the Superintendent of Archaeology, Government of Saurashtra. It belongs to Rāṇaka Bāshkaladēva, surnamed Kumkumalōla, and registers the grant of the village of Karalī situated in Jyēshtuka-dēśa in Bhūtāmbilī that formed a part of Nava-Surāshṭra-maṇḍala. The donee was the Brāhmaṇa Dāmōdara, a resident of Anahilapura. The grant was made by the king at Yajñavaṭa-tīrtha on the occasion of his pilgrimage to Piṇḍatāraka on Monday the 15th of the bright half of Vaiśākha in V. S. 1045. The date corresponds to April 22, 989 A. D. The village of Ghūmlī previously yielded six other copper-plate grants, all of which belong to kings of the Saindhava family ruling at Bhūtāmbilikā (modern Ghūmlī) from circa 740 to 920 A. D. (cf. Ep. Ind., Vol. XXVI, p. 222). Between Jāika II (899-919 A. D.), who is the latest known member of the family claiming descent from the Jayadratha vaṃśa, and Rāṇaka Bāshkaladēva of the present record, there is a gap of about 70 years. Bāshkaladēva was apparently not a member of the same family. The inscription has been published in Ep. Ind., Vol. XXXI, pp. 11 ff.

No. 1, from Bangaon (Bhagalpur District, Bihar), is a Pāla charter issued from the Jayaskandhāvāra at Kāñchanapura which is as yet unknown from any other Pāla inscription. It is dated in the 17th year of the reign of king Vigrahapāla III, son of Nayapāla. The date is important inasmuch as it proves that scholars, who favour a short reign-period for Vigrahapāla III and a longer one for his grandfather Vigrahapāla II, are wrong. The charter records the grant of a plot of land, situated at Vasukāvartta in the Hōdrēya vishaya of Tīrabhukti (modern Tirhut in North Bihar), actually made by a Brāhmaṇa officer of the Pāla emperor out of his own fief, although it has been represented as a grant of the emperor himself. This was due to the fact that the king had to ratify the creation of rent-free holdings by his fief-holders. The inscription points to the great esteem in which the Brāhmaṇas of Kōlāñcha were held by the local Brāhmaṇas of Eastern India in the early medieval period. This fact may have been responsible for the growth of Kulinism in North Bihar and Bengal. Prahastitarāja, described as a son of the Pāla king, figures as the dūta of the record and is also referred to as a mantrin. This record is published in Ep. Ind., Vol. XXIX, pp. 48 ff.

No. 3 from Pañjim (Goa) is a charter of king Jayakēśin I of the Kadamba house of Goa. It records the grant of a deserted village called Laghumōrambikā in Gōpaka-dvīpa-vishaya to Chhadama, the chief of the king's bodyguards, evidently for populating it. It was stipulated that the donee should pay rent at the rate of thirty Bhairava-nishkas annually for the first ten years and thirtyfive Bhairava-nishkas per year subsequently. The record is dated Śaka 981 corresponding to 1059 A.D.

Another copper-plate charter (No. 2) of this family comes from Sadāśivagaḍ (North Kanara District, Bombay). It records the grant of land at Aruvige, a village included in the tract of Maruvattugadalu, by king Vijayāditya in favour of a Brāhmaṇa named Gōvinda. It is interesting to note that Vijayāditya is here represented as the ruling king in Śaka 1102, Vikārin, Kārttika-śu. 12, Sunday, regularly corresponding to 1179 A. D., October 14. The fact that Śivachitta-Permādi, who was the elder brother of Vijayāditya, is not mentioned as the ruling monarch renders it probable that the latter began to rule independently from about the date of this inscription. The seal of the charter bears the legend śrī-Vishnudāsaḥ, in Nāgarī characters, above the figure of a rampant lion facing left with its tail twisted and turned up. This record has been published in Ep. Ind., Vol. XXIX, pp. 29 ff.

No. 9 was secured from Muḍikonḍāṇ, Nannilam Taluk, Tanjore District. It is dated in Śaka 1486 during the reign of Śadāśivarāya of Vijayanagara and records the grant of the village of Muḍigonḍāṇ, together with its hamlets, to a number of Brāhmaṇas by Achyuta, son of Śevvappa-Nāyaka. The viññapti of the grant was Rāmarāja of Āravīḍu. From the description of the donor given in the plates, he appears to be identical with the Nāyaka chief of that name who ruled over Tanjore during this period. Among the donees whose names are given at the end of the grant, figures a poet named Vēṅkaṭādri. He is described as well-versed in the Vaiṣṇavite lore including the Draviḍ-āgama, i.e. the Nālāyira Divya-prabandham, and as the son of Aubalārya of the Śrīvatsa gōtra, Āpastamba sūtra and Yajus śākhā. Another donee mentioned in the charter is Āchchā-dīkshita who was the son of Appayādhvarin of the Bhāradvāja gōtra and Drāhyāyana sūtra and belonged probably to the family of Appayya-dīkshita.

B.—Stone Inscriptions

Three new Brāhmī inscriptions (Nos. 140-142), copied in the caverns on the hill at Tirupparāṅkuṇṇam, near Madurai, Madras State, are the earliest epigraphs in the year's collection. They were exposed to view in the course of repairs carried out recently to these caverns. They belong to the same class of records as those found in other caverns in the Districts of Madurai, Ramanathapuram and Tirunelveli in South India (cf. A. R. Ep., 1912, p. 50 and Plate). Probably they record the names of persons who carved out the stone beds in these caverns.

In the rock-cut cave temple of Subrahmanya at Tirupparāṅkuṇṇam, a Sanskrit inscription (No. 143), engraved in florid Grantha characters on the lintel of the door-way of the Durgā shrine, was copied. It consists of a single verse in the Sragdharā metre and records that Sāmanta Bhīma, who appears to have belonged to a Vaidya family, excavated the Śiva temple on the hill and installed in it an image of Gaṇapati in the Kali year 3874 (773 A. D.), Taiśha (Pushya) 6. Māraṅgāri, another member of this family, already known from an inscription at Ānamalai, about 15 miles from Tirupparāṅkuṇṇam excavated a rock-cut temple for Viṣṇu in the Kali year 3871 (770 A. D.), three years before the date of the record under review (cf. Ep. Ind., Vol. VIII, pp. 317 ff.). In the present record the hill is called Paramaśīkharin which is obviously the Sanskrit rendering of the Tamil name Tirupparāṅkuṇṇam.

No. 1 on a boulder in the bed of the Brahmaputra river near Tezpur in the Darrang District, Assam, belongs to king Harjaravarman of the Mlēcchha (Śālas-tambha) dynasty of Prāgjyōtisha and is dated in the Gupta year 510 (829 A. D.). See P. N. Bhattacharya, Kāmarūpaśāsanāvalī, pp. 185 ff. It is worthy of note that the Gupta era was in use in Assam during this period when the Vikrama and Śaka eras were popular in other regions. Another inscription (No. 15) on a rock at Kānāibarshī, on the other side of the Brahmaputra near Gauhati, is dated Madhumāsa (Chaitra) 13, Śaka 1127 which is given in figures as well as in the chronogram turaga-yugm-ēśa (īśa=11, yugma=2, turaga=7). It records the defeat of the Turushkas (Muhammadans) in Kāmarūpa on the said date corresponding to the 7th March, 1206 A. D. (cf. P. N. Bhattacharya, op. cit., introduction, p. 44).

At Guṇḍlāpalle in the Ongole Taluk of the Guntur District, Madras State, was copied an undated and damaged Telugu inscription (No. 128) of the time of Vijayāditya, apparently of the Eastern Chālukya family. It records a gift of land made by his subordinate Kaḍeyarāja and mentions Aytakavva, the wife (dēvu) of Kali-Viṭrāju (i.e. Kali-Viṭṭa-rāja). The imprecation at the end of the record states that those who would destroy the gift should be considered as traitors to Tribhuvanāṅkuśa. Since Tribhuvanāṅkuśa was the title of some of the kings of the Eastern Chālukya dynasty, king Vijayāditya of the record must have been a member of this family. His identity, however, is doubtful. The record may be assigned palaeographically to a date about the 9th century. During this period there were two kings who bore the name Vijayāditya, viz. Vijayāditya II Narēndra-Mṛigarāja (circa 799-847 A. D.) and Guṇaga Vijayāditya III (circa 848-92 A. D.). The former had a son called Kali-Vishṇuvardhana or Kali-Viṭṭarasa who was the father of Guṇaga Vijayāditya. As no other member of the family is known to have borne this name, Kali-Viṭṭaraju of the present record may be identified with the said prince. Whether Vijayāditya of the inscription was his father or son, however, cannot be stated with any degree of certainty. But Kaḍeyarāju, the officer mentioned in the record, figures often in the inscriptions of the time of Guṇaga Vijayāditya III and it is more probable that the ruler during whose reign the present epigraph was incised was Guṇaga Vijayāditya himself. From the Ponangy plates (A. R. Ep., C. P. No. 3 of 1908-9) we know that the Rāshtrakūṭa princess Śilamahādēvī was the queen of Kali-Viṭṭarasa and the mother of Guṇaga Vijayāditya. Aytakavva figuring in the present record is therefore another queen of this king not so far known from any other source.

Nos. 149-50 are two Kannada inscriptions copied at Mūlūr within the village of Bālepuṇi in the Mangalore Taluk of the South Kanara District. They are engraved on the obverse and reverse sides of a slab in characters assignable to the 10th century A. D. One of them (No. 150) records the excavation of a tank in memory of a chief named Kiḷḷa Vikramāditya. The other record (No. 149) mentions Kiḷḷa Kannayya as the younger brother of Kiḷḷa Vikramāditya and introduces him with the title Mūlapura-paramēśvara. Apparently Kiḷḷa here indicates the family to which these chiefs belonged. Mūlapura is evidently the locality known as Mūlūr which forms a part of Bālepuṇi.

From Hirēkerūr, Dharwar District, comes an interesting inscription (No. 83) which belongs to the reign of the Western Chālukya king Sōmēśvara I and is dated Śaka 983 (1060 A. D.). It describes the exploits of a military officer of the monarch, named Guṇḍamayya, who bore the epithets Narmadānady-ubhaya-taṭa-rājahansa, Maḷava-dhūmakētu, Maṇḍavakōṭ-ōllamghana, Dhārānagarakutūhala and Mummaṇi-jaladhi-baḍavānala. The epithets show that this commander of the Chālukya army distinguished himself in the northern expedition of the Chālukya king against the kingdom of Malwa. The epithet Mummaṇi-jaladhi-baḍavānala occurring in the epigraph suggests that he participated in another expedition of his master against the forces of Mummaṇi, the Śilāhāra chief of Northern Konkan. This Mummaṇi was ruling in 1059-60 A. D. as known from the Ambarnāth stone inscription (Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, part ii, pp. 18, 543).

Nos. 156-210 were copied at the Raṅganāthasvāmin temple at Śrīraṅgam in the Tiruchirappalli District.

Nos. 167 and 169 at the entrance of the Nāḷikēṭṭānvāśal belong to Kulōttuṅga-chōḷa I (circa 1070-1120 A. D.) and mention Araiyaṇ Rājēndraśōḷaṇ alias Rājānārāyaṇa Muṇaiyadaraiyar, the chief of Koṭṭūr and a Sēnāpati under the king, and Vira-Vichchādira (Vidyādhara) Mūvēndavēlār, the Śrīkāryam officer of the temple. The former figures as a donor to the god at Kālahasti in the 26th year of the king's reign (Nos. 157 and 158 of 1922), while another member of the same family, Gaṅgaikondaśōḷa-Muṇaiyadaraiyar alias Arigaṇḍadēva Āyarkolundanār of Koṭṭūr, figures also as a Sēnāpati in other inscriptions copied earlier in this temple (A. R. Ep., Nos. 122 and 123 of 1938). No. 182 is also dated in the 26th regnal year of the king; but the grant portion of the record seems to have been deliberately effaced. The latest record of the king in the collection is No. 210 which is dated in the 42nd year of his reign. Unlike the others, this inscription does not contain any praśasti, but commences straightaway with the mention of the date. It registers certain provisions made by the chief Vāṇakōvaraiyar for the sacred bath of the deity on the ēkādaśī day of every fortnight. Yet another damaged inscription (No. 187) seems to record a sumptuous provision of 10,000 kalam of paddy for the temple surpassing a similar gift of 2,000 kāiam of paddy recorded in another epigraph copied from the temple (A. R. Ep., No. 44 of 1948-49).

Nos. 156-58 engraved in the niches on the inner walls of the Āryabhattāl-vāśal belong to Rājārāja III and are dated in the 23rd regnal year of the king corresponding to 1239 A. D. Of these, the first and the last, viz. Nos. 156 and 158, mention Goppana and Chaṭṭaya both of whom held the office of Sēnaibōga under Valaya or Vallaiya-daṇḍanāyaka, one of the generals of Dēvaṇ Sōmēśvaradēvaṇ. No. 158 mentions this general as Bōgaya-daṇḍanāyakar-Vallaiya-daṇḍanāyaka. Dēvaṇ Sōmēśvaradēvaṇ, referred to as the overlord probably of both these generals, is obviously the Hoysala king Sōmēśvara. The relationship between Bōgaya and Vallaiya is not clearly stated in the inscription. They may be related to each other as father and son. But an inscription (Ep. Carr., Vol. IV, Kr. 63) from Gōvindahalli, dated Śaka 1159 (1237 A. D.), describes two generals named Bōgayya and Mallayya as sons of Kētana and as recipients, from king Sōmēśvara, of a grant of eleven villages which they, in their turn, conferred on several Brāhmaṇas in the presence of god Śrī-Rāmanātha at Sētu. In view of the proximity of the date of this record to that of the inscription under review, it may be surmised that Bōgayya and Mallayya may be identical with Bōgaya and Vallaiya of the Śrīraṅgam epigraph, in which case Mallayya will have to be construed as another form of Vallaiya. It is not unlikely too that, of the two brothers Bōgaya and Mallaya of the Gōvindahalli record, the former's (i.e. Bōgayya's) son was Vallaiya.

A fragment of a Chōla epigraph (No. 168) on the outer tiers of the Nālikēttānvāsal is of some interest. It seems to refer to the settlement of accounts amounting to 940 kāṣu, for the non-payment of which Pāradāyaṇ Tiruvaraṅga-Puru-shōttamaṇ suffered imprisonment (śirai-irundu). The accounts, as the record says, were settled by the officer Rājēndrachōla-Mūvēndavēlār. The epigraph affords an instance of punishment by imprisonment, not commonly met with in inscriptions.

Two large stone pillars in the passage of the Nālikēttānvāsal bear epigraphs surmounted by graffito designs, one of which represents a rampant tiger with open mouth, raised right foot and twisted tail, and the other the mythical bird Gaṇḍabhērunda. The inscription (No. 177) engraved below the latter emblem is too damaged to yield any information. All that could possibly be said is that it mentions Kaṇṇanūr.

No. 179, engraved in characters of about the 15th century A. D. below the design of a rampant tiger, is a Chēra record which commences with a Sanskrit verse giving a genealogical account of the Kēraḷa king Champaka. It describes him as the daughter's son (dauhitra) of king Jayasimha, son of Gōdēśvara, the sister's son of Kulaśēkhara and the brother of Mārttāṇḍa. A bilingual inscription (Nos. 126 and 127 of 1905) on a bell in the Nambi temple at Tirukkuruṅgudi in the Tirunelvēli District dated in Kollam 644 (1469 A. D.) mentions the Chēra king Āditya as the donor of the bell and traces his descent from the lineage of Jayasimha (Jayasimh-ānvaya). It is difficult to determine whether this Āditya is to be regarded as identical with the donor Champaka of the record under review, which, we may note, specifies his matrilineal descent from Jayasimha. An inscription (No. 30 of 1925) from Mūvalūr in the Mayavaram Taluk, Tanjore District, contains some verses in Tamil said to have been composed at the instance of Chēramāṇ Perumāḷ Vañchi-marttāṇḍaṇ Tiruppāmūtta-Tiruvaḍi who is described as an adept in all arts (akhila-kalā-vallabha). He is perhaps identical with Mārttāṇḍa, mentioned in the record under review. The significance of the tiger crest, which is the emblem of the Chōlas, above this epigraph is inexplicable.

No. 197 is a fragmentary record of king Harihara II of Vijayanagara. It opens with a Sanskrit verse containing the chronogram Rājyalōkē for Śaka 1312 which is expressed also in numerals in the Tamil portion of the inscription. It records a gift of a tūkkū-viḷakku (hanging lamp) and 30 cows to the deity by Anṇappa-udaiyar, son of Viṭṭharasa of the Vatsa gōtra. We learn from another record (A. R. Ep., No. 72 of 1938-39) from the same temple, dated six years later than the present epigraph, that Anṇappa was responsible for the construction of the pavement to the 1000-pillared maṇḍapa in the temple, the consecration of god Viṭṭhala therein and the gilding of the central shrine and also the gift of an aureola and provision for offerings to and worship of the god.

No. 206, which is in Sanskrit verse in Grantha characters, mentions Dēvarāya as the ruling sovereign and the chief Sāḷuva, son of Guṇḍa (III) and Māḍāmbikā and grandson of Maṅgu. The record is not dated. Sāḷuva is obviously Narasimha, a scion of the Sāḷuva family. Dēvarāya, the overlord of Sāḷuva according to the present record, is stated to be the son of Vijayēśvara. The earliest known date for Sāḷuva Narasimha being 1456 A. D. (A. R. Ep., No. 253 of 1904), Dēvarāya of the present record may be identified with Mallikārjuna (1446-1466 A. D.) who is also known as Immaḍi-Dēvarāya and whose father Dēvarāya II had the title Vijaya (Sewell, Hist. Ins. S. Ind., p. 215). The Sāḷuvābhyudaya of Rājanātha Diṇḍima gives the name of Sāḷuva Narasimha's mother as Mallāmbikā which is possibly a variant of Māḍāmbikā. The inscription stops abruptly with the mere mention of this chief who calls himself a bhūmīramaṇa.

There are two fragmentary records of Kṛishṇarāya (Nos. 191 and 192), one of which mentions Timmappa-nāyakkar and Ādiyappa-nāyakkar, the two sons of Vāśal Vasavaśaṅkara Mallappa-nāyakkar, as donors of a grove to the temple. There is only one inscription (No. 209) of the reign of Achyutarāya in the year's collection. The chief interest of the record lies in the fact that it is a Tamil inscription engraved in Nāgarī characters. Instances of Kannada or Telugu inscriptions engraved in Grantha characters are fairly common in the temple (cf. A. R. Ep., Nos. 33, 44, 79, 106, etc., of 1938-39). An earlier instance of this kind of transliteration of a record in one language into a script different from its own is found in a multi-lingual record of the 12th century A. D. in the village of Doṅḡaḷasāni in the Cuddapah District (Nos. 9-12 of 1938). There are three versions of the record, in Telugu, Kannada and Tamil, the last of which, curiously enough, is written both in its own script and in Nāgarī. The record under consideration seems to refer to certain endowments made to the temple by Śrīraṅgappa-nāyaka who was the son of Tuḷuva Veṅḡalappa-nāyaka and a subordinate of the king. He figures in two other records from this very temple (Nos. 15 and 91 of 1938-39) in one of which Tuḷuva Veṅḡaḷa is described as Madurai-araśar-paḍavīṭṭu Tuḷuva Veṅḡaḷa-nāyaka.

No. 178 enumerates a list of provisions made for the worship of the deity, one of which was meant for the recitation of the Śrīpurāṇam in the temple. This Śrīpurāṇam must be different from the well-known Jaina work of the same name (A. R. Ep., 1887, p. 7).
